The freeze on Christmas eve caused a pipe to burst apart in our ceiling, flooding our downstairs. We turned off our water and contacted someone else. They said they're very busy so they'll "try" to get to us on Wednesday. They didn't come so said "maybe Friday." When they couldn't make that, they said they'd be here Saturday at 9am. They didn't show. I called Fast Flow Plumbing at 1231pm, explaining that we'd been without water for a full week. They were at my house before 130pm working on our plumbing.

On Christmas Eve morning, we woke up to a broken backflow valve, as well the associated pipes were completely blown out.

We called Fast Flow Plumbing and Drain, and within moments we received a call from Jacob, who tried to walk us through restoring water to our house, avoiding a costly holiday service charge. However, our system could not be restored, without a professional plumber. ...
